BIO

Scott Landman is a dedicated medical educator and internal medicine resident at Northwell Forest Hills LIJ Hospital. He graduated from the New York Institute of Technology College of Osteopathic Medicine (NYITCOM) in 2024. Originally from Melville, New York, Scott earned his undergraduate degree from Binghamton University in 2019, majoring in integrative neuroscience and Judaic studies with a minor in education. With a passion for clinical medicine, research, and teaching, Scott aspires to become an attending physician who mentors medical students and residents. In addition to his Doctorate in Osteopathic Medicine, he also obtained a Master's in Academic Medicine from NYITCOM for his additional year of teaching, research, and other academic endeavors. During his medical school career, Scott has been published in multiple academic journals including, but not limited to, The Journal of Atrial Fibrillation and Electrophysiology, Heart Rhythm, The Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology, the Journal of Osteopathic Medicine, EP Lab Digest, and the Osteopathic Family Physician. Outside of his professional pursuits, he enjoys collecting hot sauces and cheering for the New York Islanders.
